

MANITOS COMMUNITY MEMORY PROJECT

The telling of folk tales by one generation to another, is an art lost to our busy noisy world. We are lucky that this tradition persists here, longer than in most places. Stories carried voice by voice across time, and offered up with snacks.

Do you remember a favorite folk tale that you were told? Who told it to you, and where? Who might you tell this story to?

Please share your story...

Inspired by the living culture of northern New Mexico and southern Colorado, the Manitos Community Memory Project is focused on building an archive of stories, photos and more.

To learn more about the project visit our online blog:

www.manitos.net

